

ASBA INSTITUTIONAL MEMBERSHIP – United States and International –

Institutional Members of the American Society of Botanical Artists (ASBA) are important supporters of the fine art and science of botanical art and illustration. These corporate and non-profit members provide a local and regional base for botanical artists and illustrators – both ASBA individual members and non-members.

As an Institutional Member in the ASBA your organization will Receive special mailings from the ASBA:

- two copies each quarter of The Botanical Artist
- one copy of the Annual Directory of Members
- one copy of each exhibition catalog published in the membership year

Be invited to post on the ASBA's website:

- contact information and a link to your institution's website
- announcements of classes and workshops you sponsor related to botanical art
- listing of a certificate program in botanical art if your institution offers one
- articles about collections of botanical art held by your institution
- call for entries and notices of exhibitions of botanical art curated by your institution

Opportunities to be highlighted in the Botanica Collected column or feature articles published in The Botanical Artist (subject to available space and editor's prerogative)

Be eligible to send delegates to attend the ASBA Annual Meeting and Conference*

*Please note: Institutional membership does not confer ASBA individual membership on those belonging to the institution. However, designated staff members of your organization may register and pay to attend ASBA's Annual Meeting and Conference to represent the institution and participate on the institute's behalf.
